Black Middletown Project, 1980-1981

7 boxes; 2.0 cu. ft.

History

The Black Middletown Project collection includes oral history interviews documenting the history of African Americans in Muncie, Indiana. The interviews were conducted by Rutledge M. Dennis and Vivian V. Gordon from the University of Virginia and Virginia Commonwealth University in 1981 as part of the Middletown III project funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities. Topics discussed include: segregation, the Ku Klux Klan, the Great Depression, organized labor and the economic, social and religious lives of African Americans in Muncie, Indiana.

Scope and Content

This collection contains interviews conducted by Routledge M. Dennis, Vivian V. Gordon and graduate assistants from the University of Virginia and Virginia Commonwealth University in 1981. The collection consists of original transcripts, duplicates of original transcripts, edited transcripts and audio cassettes. Each interview was assigned a unique identification number. Not all interviews have an audio recording and/or a transcript. This collection is part of the Middletown Digital Oral History Collection and digitized transcripts and audio are available online in the Digital Media Repository (<http://libx.bsu.edu>).

Restrictions

In compliance with the original agreement between the interviewers and interviewees, the identities of the names of the interviewees are not included. Original transcripts may include the names of interviewees. Their names have been removed from the edited transcripts.
