About the Awards

The Paul W. Parkison Department of Accounting at Ball State University honors those who lead by example through the Accounting Alumni Awards. The annual dinner and awards presentation, held each fall, allows the department to show its appreciation to those alumni and friends who are outstanding individuals in the profession and the community.

Nominate an Accounting Graduate

Do you know an outstanding Ball State alumnus/alumna in the field of accounting? Nominate him/her to be honored at an upcoming dinner! Nominees will be eligible for consideration for three years.

Submissions for each year's consideration are due by July 31:

Honoree Levels

Emerging Leader Award

This award recognizes an accounting alumnus of Ball State who has demonstrated leadership in their career. This person is typically in the first ten years of their accounting or finance career and has demonstrated qualities that place them ahead of their peers. This individual has made outstanding contributions to the accounting or finance profession through work, community service, and giving back to Ball State.

Graduate of Excellence Award

This award recognizes an accounting alumnus of Ball State who consistently goes above and beyond the expectations of a typical individual in their field. This person is typically ten years or more into their accounting or finance career and has demonstrated qualities that put them ahead of their peers. This individual has contributed meaningfully to their employer, community, and Ball State. This individual is recognized as a successful leader that other alumni would desire to emulate and garners respect from peers, employees, and friends.

Lifetime Achievement Award

This award is given to an individual who has dedicated their life and career to making the accounting profession better. Their dedication to their workplace, community, and Ball State is exceptional and unusual. This individual has contributed meaningfully to enriching the lives of others and demonstrates the qualities that other graduates desire to emulate.
