Paving Your Career Path
Tuesday, January 23, 6-7 p.m., Student Center, Ballroom
Hosted by the Career Center
Your career path can often feel uncertain, unattainable, or like there are too many paths to take. Often having help along the way can make those unknown paths less puzzling. From choosing your major to retirement, there are tools available to help you make sense of your winding career path. This workshop will help you understand available tools and strategies to identify a path that is right for you.

A Student Perspective: Forum on Success
Wednesday, February 7, 6-7 p.m., Student Center, Ballroom
Hosted by the Freshman Advising Center
Do you want to hear from students that have been in your shoes and found success? The Forum on Success program includes a panel of students (like you) who have faced academic challenges but have gained success and reached their academic goals. You will gain insight from other students on how it felt to be on probation, valuable information about the steps they took to get off of probation, and what resources were helpful. You will also have the opportunity to ask questions. You will leave this program feeling better equipped academically and more motivated for the spring semester.

Learning Styles & Time Management
Tuesday, February 27, 2-3 p.m., Student Center, Ballroom
Hosted by the Freshman Advising Center
Would you like to approach mid-term exams and/or finals week with a fresh approach to time management and a clear plan for preparing for exams, projects and papers? Did you know that students learn and process information differently? You have already probably realized that how you learn may be different than how your best friend or roommate learns best. You may have discovered that what works for you doesn’t always work for other people. Or you may still be on a journey to find what actually does work best for you! This workshop is designed to help you become a more successful student at Ball State by providing you with a brief overview of the learning process and examples of individual learning styles (and complementary study strategies). This workshop will also help you identify resources (including paper and electronic tools) to help you develop time management strategies.

I Need to Change My Major, So Now What?
Monday, March 19, 3:30-4:30 p.m. Student Center, Ballroom
Hosted by the Career Center
Did you select a major or career path that is “too hard”? Or have you realized that you may not have the grades and GPA to continue in your chosen major? Have you realized recently that your major just isn’t what you thought it would be? Are you starting to second guess what you thought was the perfect choice? Choosing a major can often be just as challenging as choosing a career path. Changing your major from something you thought would be perfect can be even more difficult. How do you breakup with your major that you thought was the perfect choice? This workshop will help you understand how to break-up with your current major while choosing a new one to love at the same time!
