LETTER FROM THE DIRECTOR AND ASSISTANT DIRECTOR

This spring, the David Owsley Museum of Art showcases the lives and art of a famous Hoosier artist couple in Impressions of Love: J. Ottis and Winifred Brady Adams, a Ball State University Centennial Exhibition. The special exhibition galleries will feature the largest display of either artist’s work in more than 90 years and will only be the second exhibition to focus on the couple in more than 40 years. An illustrated exhibition catalogue contains essays that re-evaluate Winifred’s career, examine J. Ottis’s style, and explore the sometimes-volatile relationships of several Indiana artist marriages. Printing and preparation time will delay the catalogue until March; so be sure to get your copy as soon as it’s ready. In addition, Impressions of Love offers the occasion to celebrate the university’s centennial through a series of programs, such as painting workshops, musical performances, and the annual Petty lecture. This year-long celebration to commemorate Ball State’s birthday culminates for the College of Fine Arts in April, a month dedicated to music, theater, art, and this exhibition at the university.

Organizations such as the DOMA Alliance and Friends support the museum and exhibitions like this one. So, if you like what you see, then please encourage people to join. One great introduction to the Friends is to attend the ticketed cocktail party fundraiser Art in Bloom 2019, which is set for Friday evening, May 17 (followed by a free public floral exhibition on Saturday and Sunday, May 18-19). Art in Bloom 2019 will honor the art of Winfred Brady Adams and mark the closing weekend of Impressions of Love. Please attend the event and see both the art and flower show by marking your calendars today!

DOMA is greatly bolstered by the ongoing and generous support of many individual donors as well as endowment and grant funds. In 2019, two local foundations have awarded DOMA with significant gifts that will allow the museum to reach new audiences in exciting ways.

First, the George and Frances Ball Foundation has pledged $35,000 of grant funds to support Impressions of Love. The grant includes funds for the conservation treatment of several paintings, as well as printing the exhibition catalogue. Second, the Ball Brothers Foundation recently awarded another remarkable gift to DOMA. Their support of $35,000 will enhance the reach and accessibility of the museum and its collection in two ways: by continuing the School Museum Art Readiness Tours (SMART) program for local students and by funding major improvements to an online database, making the collection more available to the public.

DOMA is grateful for the Foundations’ support of these initiatives to connect our community to the collection in fresh ways, and to inspire appreciation and pride in a shared heritage and future.

The David Owsley Museum of Art at Ball State University has organized an exhibition on Muncie’s most important Impressionist painters, John Ottis Adams and Winifred Brady Adams. Comprising about 75 objects, Impressions of Love emphasizes Winifred’s career as a still-life painter, including her artistic training with Indiana-born, American Impressionist William Merritt Chase, as well as her marriage to landscape painter and Hoosier Group member J. Ottis Adams. Impressions of Love opens to the public on January 24 and runs through May 19, 2019. The David Owsley Museum of Art is its only venue and will display works of art from private collections and public institutions across the state of Indiana and from as far away as Birmingham, Alabama.

This once-in-a-lifetime exhibition is curated by Shaun Dingwerth, executive director of the Richmond Art Museum, and features a fully illustrated catalogue with a checklist and essays by several specialists in Indiana art, including Martin Krause (curator emeritus of the Indianapolis Museum of Art), Rachel Berenson Perry (curator emerita of the Indiana State Museum), and Jim Ross (independent scholar). The essays offer a fresh take on Winifred’s life and art, a re-evaluation of J. Ottis’s style and its lasting appeal, and an exploration of how several married Indiana artist couples negotiated their conjugal careers.

The artists J. Ottis and Winifred Brady Adams were the brother-and-sister-in-law of Frank C. Ball and Elizabeth Brady Ball, who were their supporters and patrons. The Ball Family founded Ball State University, and this exhibition will be held in celebration of the university’s 100th anniversary year (2018–19). These artists’ lives are deeply intertwined with the university and its museum. The couple met and married in Muncie, where Winifred first learned to paint in her future husband’s studio and where they fell in love.

Impressions of Love also marks a campaign to conserve several paintings in the museum’s collection. The most conspicuous of these was the canvas In Poppyland by J. Ottis Adams. Exhibited by popular demand despite the deep golden tone of its soiled and yellowed varnish, the flowers appeared as if trapped in amber. After a sensitive and delicate cleaning, the field of poppies now displays a variety of related hues and the landscape has recovered a subtle atmospheric perspective—effects best perceived from firsthand observation of the original rather than reproductions. Several other pictures were also treated, including a portrait of J. Ottis as a dashing 29-year-old painted by the little-known artist John T. Cope. Several of the paintings’ ornate, carved, molded, and gilt frames had also grown brittle and cracked with age. The most spectacular of these, a foliate, vine, and vegetal design over four inches thick surrounding J. Ottis Adams’s Nooning, required the creation of special molds, hand carving, and a partial re-gilding.

Several enchanting, engaging, and informative programs will accompany the exhibition, including a musical performance by Joel and Becca Braun of Ball State University’s School of Music; couples, youth, and adult painting workshops; and a Petty Memorial Lecture by Impressions of Love’s curator. PechaKucha talks at Final Friday events in March and April also coordinate with the show by focusing on the themes of love and beauty. Finally, Impressions of Love will end with a floral crescendo during the annual Art in Bloom event weekend, May 17–19, 2019. See the enclosed calendar for details.

Conservation costs, catalogue printing expenses, and exhibition loan fees have been generously underwritten by the George and Frances Ball Foundation supplemented by the museum’s own Ball Brothers Foundation endowment. In this way, the Ball family legacy, Ball State University, and the people of Muncie continue to support their hometown artists, J. Ottis and Winifred Brady Adams.

HANIWA FIGURE OF A WOMAN

Haniwa (hani means clay, and wa circle) are ancient, unglazed, fired clay objects created according to the wazumi technique, in which clay coils were built up to shape the figure.

Human and animal figures like these marked a burial mound (kofun), which often had a keyhole shape. Usually a house-shaped haniwa was placed directly over the deceased, while other figures surrounded the tomb in concentric patterns.

This figure’s cylindrical form, animated features, cut out eyes and mouth, and both head and neck ornaments are typical of many haniwa figures. But its arm position and hand shape are particular to figures from Gunma Prefecture in the center of Japan’s main island of Honshu.
