TEACHING AND INTERDISCIPLINARY STUDIES

Script Writer and Presenter of 5 digital modules on the European Enlightenment and China for the BSU Core Curriculum course History 150, "The West in the World." Integrated Learning Institute (iLearn, Richard Edwards, Director), 2013-2014.

These modules focus on introducing freshmen, who are not history majors, to historical thought processes and the historical method through the case-study example of early modern Europe's cultural interaction with China.

BSU Freshman Connections Participant, 1997-2010.

Interdisciplinary Living and Learning Retention Program in which students shared dormitory space and classes. Students in my History 150, "The West in the World" course also shared one other class through this program. Shared professors developed themes common to their disciplines in their classes so as to demonstrate the extent to which a dialogue between different fields can enrich our understanding of the world and societies around us. This program was recognized in the College Edition of U.S. News and World Report (2005-2009) as an outstanding first-year experience "believed to lead to student success." Between 1998 and 2003 second-year retention increased from 68.3% to 78.3%. In a survey taken in my class in 1999, 85.39% of 89 students saw history as inter-related with other disciplines.

Panel Participant, Indiana Student Affairs Association Conference, October 11, 2006.

Discussed interdisciplinary interaction with English instructors, advisors, residence hall directors, and students involved in the BSU Freshman Connections Program. The panel was entitled "Freshman Connections: Helping Students Make Connections for Success."

Lumina Foundation Summer Workshop, 2005.

Participant in a project to sustain learning in Ball State University's core curriculum with the ultimate goal of enhancing retention and making students appreciate interdisciplinary approaches in scholarship.

Certified Nature Mapper, Indiana Biodiversity Initiative, 2000-2001.

In 2000, I became a certified nature mapper for the state of Indiana. As a nature mapper, I familiarized myself with the field identification of terrestrial and avian fauna in order to keep a record of the state of biodiversity in the Muncie, Indiana region.

Panel Participant, BSU Conference on the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning, April 10, 1999.

Discussed interdisciplinary interaction with English instructors, advisors, residence hall directors, and students involved in the BSU Freshman Connections Program.

Participation in Curriculum Development Workshops.

Core Curriculum Institute at Ball State University, May 8-12, 2000.

“Mexico and Our Connections” for Middle School Teachers of Social Studies, Feb. 23, 1996.

Course Development Workshop, General Studies Workshop, May 10-14, 1993.

SERVICE

Chairperson, Department of History, Ball State University, July 1, 2016-March 1, 2022.

Duties included supervising budgetary expenditures and the hiring of faculty and staff; composing and editing materials for annual reports, unit action plans, an academic unit review (2016-2021) and assessment reports; and dealing with faculty, staff and student grievances. I also led departmental discussions and created a committee on intersectionality and inclusive excellence to generate an overall, focused sense of mission, defining academic areas of strength in the department (e.g., global women’s and gender history, early modern global studies and Africana studies). I created an Alumni Advisory Board and increased national and international outreach through hosting workshops using the Zoom and Shindig platforms.

Assistant Chair, Department of History, Ball State University, July, 2007- January, 2012.

During 4 ½ years as assistant chair, duties included scheduling classes; assigning undergraduate teaching fellows to professors; managing these undergraduate employees; editing the department’s annual newsletter; and serving as acting chairperson in the absence of the departmental chair. I also extended the department’s community outreach through involving students in various public history projects.
