

COPYRIGHT CENTER INTRODUCTION VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

DR. FRITZ DOLAK: Hello, I'm Fritz Dolak of The University Copyright Center. The center exists to assist our faculty and our students in understanding the copyright law and how it relates to the educational uses of another person's intellectual property. University Copyright Center home page has information on fair use, tutorials, and information on the special law for distance educators called the Teach Act, and thanks for visiting.

© CLASSROOM PRESENTATIONS VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

DR. TERRY WIEDMER: Hi, I'm Terry Wiedmer, Professor of Curriculum at Teachers College. I'd like to emphasize the importance of copyright issues for your students and your curriculum in the classroom. The University Copyright Center provides customized classroom presentations on relevant copyright issues and intellectual property concerns. I highly recommend contacting the copyright center for customized presentations of copyright issues in the educational environment.

ROYALTY FREE MATERIALS VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

DR. FRITZ DOLAK: Hi, I'm Fritz Dolak, and I'd like to let you know about the royalty-free materials including photos, music, sound effects, and graphics that students and faculty can use for teaching, presentations, theses, and papers. One useful source for photos is the Associated Press photo archive with over 700,000 photographs taken from the Civil War to photos of the Middle East taken just yesterday. If you have questions, The University Copyright Center is here to provide answers in your uses of royalty-free copyright materials.

INSTRUCTIONAL TECHNOLOGY AND COPYRIGHT VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

DR. FRITZ DOLAK: Hi, I'm Fritz Dolak, the Manager of the University Copyright Center. When it comes to Instructional Technology and using copyrighted materials, a number of intellectual property issues need to be taken into account. For example, digitizing someone else's intellectual property might involve creating a derivative work which requires permission from the copyright owner. The University Copyright Center is here to assist you with any of your Instructional Technology Copyright Law concerns and needs in regards to Copyright Law. If you have questions, we have answers.

STUDENT RIGHTS VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

AMY: Hi, my name is Amy and I'm a student at Ball State. I'd like to remind you that the Copyright Law gives all students specific rights for all of the class assignments we create. Please remember that as students, we own all rights to the works we create as part of our educational experiences and if anyone wants to copy or distribute our course assignments, you need our permission. If you have any questions, please visit the University Copyright Center. And thank you very much.
