Season’s Greetings, musicians!

Winter Break means time off from teaching, replaced by holiday gigs, and preparation for the next semester. The Libraries will be open with somewhat reduced hours. Details are on the Libraries’ web page: http://cms.bsu.edu/academics/libraries/about/hourscalendars. If you are away from campus, feel free to e-mail me or to contact the Reference Desk via many options from the Ask a Librarian page (http://www.bsu.edu/libraries/askalibrarian/)

The Chamber Music Media Finder

Have you ever wanted to know what sheet music the Music Collection has for a particular instrumental combination? The Chamber Music Finder is a great short-cut into the Libraries’ catalog. You can select the instrument(s) you want, the format (Scores), and by using the keyword “parts” you can find chamber music sets in the collection. For example, to find performance parts for flute, viola and harp:

Select “Scores” for any type of sheet music:

Select the instrument and number of players for it:

Featured Book:
Roman de Fauvel

The Roman de Fauvel manuscript of ca. 1315 is one of the landmarks of the Ars Nova period in music history. The manuscript tells a long allegorical tale, illustrated by music and lavish art work. The music includes works by Philippe de Vitry in Ars Nova notation (red and black notes representing a change between duple and triple meters). The notation we use today is an outgrowth of this development. Our copy is a black-and-white facsimile.

Updates to Grove Music Online

Articles from the 2nd edition of the New Grove Dictionary of American Music and The Grove Dictionary of Musical Instruments are being added to the online Grove Music at the same time as other updates are added. The Summer 2015 updates include articles on the Black Swan record label, J-Pop (Japanese popular music), and the Gagaku Shakuhachi flute. Updates include articles on Gesualdo and Purcell.

If you know of an article that is out-dated or needs to be written, volunteer yourself or make a suggestion by sending an e-mail to:

Featured CD: Alan Lomax’s Recordings & Photographs from Parchman Farm
Compact Disc 22655

The usual idea of a “field” or ethnographic recording would be a musicologist, microphone in hand, tapping “natives” in “primitive” cultures. Lomax traveled the United States capturing the folk music of modern people, including residents of Parchman Farm, a prison in Mississippi. He also photographed the musicians. The 2-CD set comes with a book featuring these photographs.
