ADMINISTRATIVE WORK HISTORY

Ball State University

Chair, School of Kinesiology, May, 2010 - present

As the chief executive of the School, I plan, direct, and coordinate the academic, operational, personnel, budgetary, and student activities of the various majors, minors, graduate studies, and related programs. I provide leadership, vision, and direction in the development and implementation of academic programs and in the maintenance of excellence in teaching, scholarship, and professional service. The School has 22 tenure-line faculty, 19 full-time contract faculty, and 13 Administrative Coordinators/professional staff. Approximately 900 undergraduate students are enrolled across five academic majors and five academic minors (majors: Athletic Training, Aquatics, Exercise Science, Sport Administration, and Health and Physical Education-Teacher Education; minors: Aquatics, Coaching, Gerontology, Scuba, and Workplace Wellness). The School also delivers the Physical Fitness and Wellness course, a University core requirement for all students (4,000 annually). We have approximately 150 graduate students across nine Master's Degree Programs (Biomechanics, Clinical Exercise Physiology, Exercise Physiology, Sport Performance, Sport and Exercise Psychology, Sport Administration, and Athletic Coaching Education; two are inactive, Applied Gerontology and Workplace Wellness) and a Doctoral Program in Human Bioenergetics. Teaching/research laboratories include the following: Human Performance Lab (internationally recognized), Biomechanics Lab (national-class), Integrative Exercise Physiology Lab (three-years old), Athletic Training Lab, Exercise Science/First Aid Teaching Lab, and Clinical Proficiency Evaluation Room.

Director, Athletic Training Education Program, 1998-2011

As the administrative head of the accredited Athletic Training Education Program, my responsibilities included ongoing compliance with CAATE Standards (Commission on Accreditation of Athletic Training Education); preparation, development, implementation, delivery, documentation, and assessment of all components of the curriculum; oversight of clinical education; and supervision of the program budget. Simultaneously, I served as the Academic Coordinator of Clinical Education. Responsibilities included monitoring student clinical progression, evaluating clinical education sites, evaluating student skills, training and evaluating preceptors.

Sports Medicine Consortium, Inc. (February 15, 1993-August 15, 1997)

Founder and Charter President: This multi-disciplinary research, education, and service organization operated as a non-profit, insured corporation for Ball State and Muncie area sports medicine professionals and awarded its first research grant in August, 1995. As president, I facilitated multiple sports medicine focus group/think tank sessions (e.g., performance enhancement, pediatric athlete, upper respiratory illness and exercise, aging athlete).

California State University, Northridge, 1985-1991

I served as the administrative head of the NATA-approved Athletic Training Education Program. Responsibilities were very similar to my Ball State position (1991-2011).

SCHOLARLY PRODUCTIVITY: RESEARCH, CREATIVE ENDEAVORS, AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT
