Biography:

Evan Duff is Black actor and artist currently based in New York City. Evan chose Ball State because of its commitment to encouraging, fostering, and celebrating authenticity in its many forms. The Department's emphasis on integrity and kindness created an optimal learning environment. One of the most impactful experiences Evan had was getting to work with acting instructor, Dee Dee Batteast, both in class and in the production season. Dee Dee provided a safe space that welcomed Blackness and Queerness and Evan learned more about himself than he could have dreamed otherwise. Evan's goal for the Ambassador Program is to extend resources to BIPOC students and ultimately create lasting change in the entertainment industry. Past credits include the world premieres of Becoming Nancy at the Alliance Theatre in Atlanta, GA and Diana at the La Jolla Playhouse in San Diego, CA.
