

Molly Hagerty (she/her) is an actor, singer, dancer, and writer currently receiving her BFA in Musical Theatre at Ball State University. Originally from Bangor Maine, Molly is a previous Principal Company member at Penobscot Theatre Company.

Through her time at Ball State, Molly has been an avid member of advocacy and inclusivity groups, working to bring to light the importance of representation on both sides of the table.

Most notably, this year Molly founded the Women and Allies for Gender Equity organization in collaboration with Ball State's Department of Theatre and Dance. Working to foster conversations surrounding women and AFAB's artistic experiences, and bringing art and outreach to the women of the greater Muncie, Indiana community.

Molly is a queer actor and advocate of female-written, produced, and performed works. As an artist, her goal is to constantly be cultivating and joining safe female and queer-driven spaces with aspirations to bring women's voices and stories forward through their art. A true collaborator at heart, Molly hopes to continue the work of the artists who have paved the way before her, and use her art as a way to create and share honest, uncensored storytelling.
