Course Description

Lectures will review physics and various systems of remote sensing, while lab exercises will cover some applications of remote sensing in the environment. Topics include electromagnetic radiation, aerial photo interpretation, photogrammetry, multispectral-, hyperspectral-, and thermal remote sensing, RADAR/LIDAR, and remote sensing applications on vegetation, water, and urban landscapes.

Prerequisites

None

Course Goals/Objectives

- Understand the principles of aerial photography and photogrammetry
- Learn to examine spectral, spatial, and temporal properties of satellite remote sensing systems
- Explore the applications of remote sensing for environmental monitoring and natural resources management
- Develop basic skills of image processing on remotely sensed data

Course Structure

The eight-module course is divided into units that are due every two weeks; you should try to complete one module, or one chapter, on average, every two weeks. In each module, there is one homework assignment and one quiz based on the contents of the textbook, plus one lab exercise based on the lecture materials. Each module's materials will be made available one at a time, and all of the assignments in that module need to be completed by the end of the second week.

4. Course Materials

Textbook

- Required: Chipman, T.L.R.W.K. 2015, Remote Sensing and Image Interpretation, 7th Edition, Wiley Global Education US.
- Details see Modules|Instructor, Textbook & Software|Textbook

Software

This course requires the digital image processing software ERDAS Imagine, which has been installed on all computers in the GIS labs in the School of Earth, Atmosphere, and Sustainability (SEAS) and some computers in the Bracken Library. You need to use this software to complete most lab exercises and projects for image processing. Library Software Locator. can be used to find those computers in Ball State libraries that have the software installed and available to use by typing "ERDAS" to search.

If you are not able to be on campus to use those computers or have to learn from home in some circumstances, you need to request to install the software on your own computer. Details of installing this software can be found in the Modules|Instructor, Textbook & Software|Software.

5. Course Assignments and Assessments

Course Assignments

Your performance on this course will be evaluated by homework, lab exercises, and quizzes. Students' final grade (letter) for this course will be determined by the weighted percentage calculated using the following weights. Homework and lab exercises are graded based on correctness and quality. Only those assignments turned in by the stated due date are eligible for full credit consideration, although late submission is also accepted for a decreased grade for each day late. The quizzes of each chapter are based on the contents in that chapter; you need to read through the textbook in that chapter before you take the quiz. Each quiz has two attempts, and they are open-book assessments.

Assignments	Homework	Quizzes	Labs	Total
Weights	25%	35%	40%	100%

Assignment details, including instructions, relevant readings, due dates, and grading criteria/rubrics will be posted and updated on Canvas. Please check Canvas regularly to stay informed and on track.

Course Grading Scale

All students' grades are determined by the weighted grade percent (the Total column) in the Grade Center and lettered in the following grade scales:

		B+	87.0-89.9%	C+	77.0-79.9%	D+	67.0-69.9%	F	< 59.9%
A	>= 94.0%	B	84.0-86.9%	C	74.0-76.9%	D	64.0-66.9%
A-	90.0-93.9%	B-	80.0-83.9%	C-	70.0-73.9%	D-	60.0-63.9%
